

Learning and Development Policy

TYPE: Policy

TITLE: Learning and Development Policy

DEPARTMENT: Learning and Development

VERSION: 1.1

TAGS: learning, training, certification, skills, course

STATUS: stable

CONTENT:

Purpose

This policy supports employee development through relevant training, professional certifications, and structured learning activities.

Training Requests

Employees may request training related to their current responsibilities or a planned career-development path. The request should explain how the training supports the employee's work.

Certifications

The company may reimburse approved professional certification costs when the certification is relevant to the employee's role or an agreed development plan.

Approval

Training and certification requests require manager approval. Additional department or finance approval may be required depending on the cost.

Learning Time

Employees may use approved learning time during working hours when this has been agreed with their manager and does not create an unacceptable business impact.

External Courses

External courses should be selected based on relevance, quality, schedule, and cost. Employees should not commit company funds before approval.

Certification Exam

Employees should obtain approval before registering for a reimbursable certification exam. Reimbursement is subject to the applicable company rules.

Development Plans

Managers and employees are encouraged to discuss development goals during performance conversations and identify practical learning activities.