Purpose

This policy defines the basic rules for employee travel undertaken for approved business purposes.

Travel Approval

Business travel must be approved by the employee's reporting manager before transportation or accommodation is booked.

Booking

Employees should use the approved company travel process whenever it is available. Travel should be booked early enough to obtain reasonable fares.

Flights

Economy class is the standard class for domestic business travel. Any exception requires appropriate approval before booking.

Rail Travel

Train travel may be used when it is practical for the business trip. Employees should select a reasonable class based on company travel guidelines.

Accommodation

Hotel accommodation should normally be booked through the approved travel process. The selected hotel should be reasonably priced and suitable for the business purpose.

Local Transport

Reasonable taxi, public transport, or other approved local transportation costs may be claimed when they are necessary for the business trip.

Changes and Cancellation

Employees should cancel or change bookings as soon as travel plans change. Avoidable cancellation costs may require manager review.

Personal Travel

Personal travel added to a business trip must not create an unreasonable additional cost for the company. Personal expenses are not reimbursable.
